Consent form for presentation material to be uploaded to the IAP website

Copyright, images/diagrams, and de-identification of presentation material

You may include in your conference presentation:

1. Images or figures you have created. If these have been published in a journal or book, the publisher may own the copyright. In many cases publishers permit authors to use images or figures they created in conference presentations provided the original publication is acknowledged.
2. Images or figures with a Creative Commons licence. If using Creative Commons material, please comply with the applicable licence terms and acknowledge the source.
3. Tables, images or figures that are not your own work. The source must be appropriately acknowledged in the PowerPoint presentation.

Patient confidentiality and de-identification

All presentation material submitted for upload to the IAP website must be fully de-identified.

Please ensure that your presentation does not contain:

- patient name, medical record / UR number, date of birth, accession or case number
- barcode or QR code, slide, block or specimen labels
- identifiable request forms, reports, or laboratory information system screenshots
- filenames containing patient identifiers or case numbers

Please use de-identified teaching copies of images only. All visible identifiers must be removed before submission. Please also ensure that no identifying information remains in file names, screen borders, labels, speaker notes, comments, or cropped areas.

Please note: simply converting a presentation to PDF does not itself guarantee removal of hidden metadata or document properties. All identifying information must therefore be removed from the original presentation and image files before submission.

It remains the responsibility of the presenting author to ensure that all submitted material has been appropriately de-identified & checked.

I agree for my PowerPoint presentation(s) to be converted to PDF by IAP and uploaded to the IAP website for viewing by delegates.

I understand that this presentation(s) will be available on the IAP website to delegates before the event and for up to approximately 1 year after the event, and to IAP members thereafter unless otherwise advised.
